

Product Description

The purpose of the COMNAME Organizer software is to read through a directory of files and create a folder hierarchy based on the COMNAME standard format. Each file in the directory will be moved somewhere in the created hierarchy depending on the filename's company name, station name, device name, and extension. The folder hierarchy will be as follows:

For each unique company name a directory in a location specified by the user will be created.

- a. For each unique station name a sub-directory will be created in the corresponding company name directory.
 - i. For each unique device name a sub-directory will be created in the corresponding station name folder.
 - ii. In each device name folder four subdirectories will be created; these subdirectories will be named as follows:
 1. 01_Setting
 2. 02_SOE
 3. 03_Oscillography
 4. 04_Report

The last four directories are where the files will be moved to. The user will determine which file extensions are saved to which of the four directories in an INI file. The folder hierarchy described above is illustrated in the picture below. An example hierarchy is pictured below.
